The 2006 Governor's Conference on Aging will take place May 22-24 in Mesa, offering a variety of speakers and workshops on topics that should be of interest to many seniors.

The keynote speaker features Hugh Downs, long-time broadcast journalist and Valley resident. Governor Janet Napolitano and Arizona Attorney General Terry Goddard will also address conference participants.

Workshop topics focus on legal and financial information, workforce and civic engagement, healthy aging, care giving, and community living and support.

There will also be a job and volunteer fair for the mature worker, free health screenings and interactive exhibits and demonstrations.

The conference takes place at the Marriott Mesa Hotel and Mesa Convention Center. For more information on costs, hotels and topics, please call (480) 990-1887, or visit the website www.azagingconf.com, where you can also register online.
